It gives me immense pleasure to present the latest issue of our Journal Brainwave - Volume 7 and Issue No. 3, September, 2026. This issue comprises rich tapestry of research from diverse fields. The articles in this issue not only reflect academic rigor but also contain materials required for addressing global challenges in the context of technology and sustainability in the society, education and management. Each paper of this Issue has undergone a rigorous double-blind peer review process in order to ensure quality, originality and ethical standards.

I extend my heartfelt thanks to all the authors, who chose to publish in our Journal. I am also grateful to the editorial board members and reviewers, who spared their valuable time and shared their expert insights. I am also indebted to the concerned stake holders for their tireless effort for ensuring timely publication of this Issue.

I do hope that the present Issue will provide insightful reading and inspire new ideas for future research. We remain committed to enhancing the visibility, indexing and impact of the Journal. We always encourage the constructive suggestions and feedback from the readers since this will help us to better the quality of the Journal.
